CHOCOLATE ICE CUBES
Makes 1 dozen ice cubes

I’m not joking: Chocolate ice cubes are awesome. As you know by now, I grew up in Albuquerque. In the summer, it was serious heat. To quote Matthew Broderick in Biloxi Blues, “It’s like Africa hot.” So we thought of cool ways to keep cool. My mom would take three of these cubes and toss them in a glass of water or milk, or even a bowl of vanilla ice cream. You can do anything you want with them: I put them in yogurt and chill outside with a sweet treat.

2 cups chocolate syrup
1 standard ice cube tray

1. Slowly add the syrup to the ice cube tray, being careful not to overflow the tray, or you’ll be picking specks of chocolate off the freezer floor for weeks.
2. Freeze for 1 hour 30 minutes to 2 hours and serve.

SECRET TRICK: You can also wrap the ice cube tray tightly in plastic wrap and stab the middle of each cube through with a toothpick before you freeze them so that you can eat them like mini milk chocolate Popsicles. (But everyone does that, right?)
• On Android devices:

  1. Tapping once will only reveal the reading menu, to get out and go back to Hoopla’s menu swipe your finger from the top of the screen down to reveal the ‘back’ button on your device

  2. Select the ‘back’ button to return to Hoopla’s menu
